

Here's a list of the characters in LITTLE SHOP. We really would like to have as many alumni involved as possible. We're planning a light rehearsal schedule, 2 evenings a week and Saturday mornings. Even if people cannot commit to that, we'd still love to have you in the finale number. We'd send you the music and you'd have to show up for the dress rehearsal and then you could still be in the last number!

Seymour: 20's. Employed in the run-down East Side Flower Shop in skid row. He's the insecure, naïve, put-upon florist's clerk – our hero. He's sweet and well-meaning, somewhat shy, awkward; lacking in social skills. Tenor Audrey: 20's. The other employee of the East Side Flower Shop, she is honest and attractive, but has very low self-esteem and therefore dresses like trash, attracting all the wrong guys. Not well-educated, and a bit air-headed. A belter.

Mr. Mushnik: 30's-40's. Owner of the flower shop; the boss. He is a failure of a florist. Jewish middle class New Yorker. Bass/baritone.

Orin: 30's. Egotistical, rough and insensitive; Audrey's abusive boyfriend. He's a sadistic dentist, in love with the sound of his own voice. Baritone.

Audrey II (The Plant): The voice of the plant, provided by an actor on an offstage microphone: A street-smart, funky, conniving villain. The vocal quality is a cross between Otis Redding, Barry White, and Wolfman Jack. Bass/baritone

Crystal, Ronnette and Chiffon: 16-35. Female street urchins who function as both participants within the action of the play, and also as our primary story-tellers who help the story along and provide some narrative. They're smart, and the only characters who really know what's going on. They are wop girls; their three strong voices blend well together.

Mr. Bernstein: a fast-talking media hotshot

Mrs. Luce: a wealthy representative from Life Magazine; a schmoozing business type; puts on airs

Skip Snip: a smooth, trench-coated East Coast talent agent

Patrick Martin: a sleazy opportunist

Customer: An overly enthusiastic passer-by; female.

Audrey II Puppeteer- Manipulates small, medium & large plant.
